Human Beauty

To characterize , human beauty, is often based on combination of Inner beauty which includes psychological factors such as persona intelligence, grace, charisma and elegance... and Outer beauty : physical attractiveness. Standards of beauty have changed over time, based on changing cultural values. However, humans who are relatively young, with smooth skin, are considered the most beautiful throughout history. Beauty often evolves as being in balance and harmony with nature which may lead to feeling of attraction and emotional well-being evidence of cosmetic and beauty date at least from ancient Egypt for example.

- Castor oil was considered by Ancient Egyptians as a protective balm.
- Skin care creams were made of beeswax, olive oil, and rosewater.

Cosmetics include skin care for face and body, products to repair skin Imperfection (acne, wrinkles, hair loss,...)
